Winners Announced For Second Month In Local Mills Attendance Contest

Print Works Again Wins Pennant; Proximity Shipping Room, Print Works Color Shop, White Oak Second Shift Dyeing, Revolution Second Shift Napping Are The Department Winners

Proximity Print Works won the mill attendance pennant for the second successive month although with a slightly lower attendance record. Revolution mill showed a good increase in attendance percentage, working its way up from last month's 86.78 percent to 88 percent for the month beginning March 27th and ending on April 30th.

Proximity mill Shipping Room took the department flag at that mill for the second time but boosted its attendance average from 93.89 percent last month to 98.68 percent for the month just ending. First Shift Dyeing with 96.97 percent attendance for the month was close behind the Shipping Room and pushing hard for first honors.

At the Print Works, the Color Shop took the inter-department award away from the Napping Room who was last month's winner. The Color Shop came up to 95.16 percent attendance. Bleaching, Napping and Printing were all close behind.

At White Oak the Second Shift Dyeing will keep the flag it won last month with 96.72 percent attendance. This is a drop from last month's 98.67 percent attendance. Second place at White Oak goes to First Shift Carding with 92.42 percent.

At Revolution where three or four departments with poor attendance kept the mill's attendance down. Second Shift Napping keeps its flag for another month with 99.19 percent attendance. First Shift Dyeing and Bleaching is second with 98.03 percent. Second Shift Dyeing and Bleaching had a percentage of 97.51. First Shift Shipping had 96.69, and First Shift Napping had 96.22. Several others were above 90 percent.

White Oak Community Club To Hear Dr. Lennon Next Monday

Pictures On Cancer Control Will Be Shown On Monday Evening; Public Invited

At the White Oak Community club meeting next Monday evening at the welfare building, at 7:30, Dr. H. C. Lennon, pathologist, will talk on the subject of Cancer Control and moving pictures will be shown in connection with the drive now being made on this dreaded disease. Much research and study is being devoted in this country in an effort to try to combat what is known to be "Our Worst Enemy". Cancer causes more deaths every year than any other disease except heart diseases. Doctors, surgeons and research specialists have found that when this disease is diagnosed early and treated properly, that the victims can in most cases enjoy many years of good health. That is the reason that it is so important that every adult know the early symptoms and the importance of immediate treatment.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. L. C. Harris, chairman; Mrs. G. B. McIntyre, Mrs. C. T. Ward, and Mrs. M. A. Heffner. All members are urged to attend and bring someone with them.

Pvt. ERNEST C. SMITH
Pvt. Ernest C. Smith Killed In Action In Italy

The local communities were saddened recently when word of the death of Pvt. Ernest C. Smith, U. S. Army, was received here by his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Dave Smith of 1419 Walnut street, Proximity. He was killed in action March 29, in the fighting in Italy.

Entering the Army in June, 1943, Pvt. Smith received training at Camp Wheeler, Ga., and at Fort Meade, Md. before going overseas.

Pvt. Smith attended Proximity school, and was well-known over the radio, playing the guitar with the Textile Hill-billies.

Besides his family here, he is also survived by his wife, the former Mary Lee Burrows, of Randleman, and one child, Sherry Jean Smith.

Joseph A. Meadows, G. Phm. And Wife Are Honored With Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Meadows entertained at a family dinner Sunday honoring Joseph A. Meadows, G. Phm and his bride, the former Pauline Riddle.

Those present besides the hostesses and honorees were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Payne and children, Ralph, Donald and Rebecca. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cable, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Meadows and children, Martha, Arleta and Faye, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dees, Jr.

Revolution Community Club Enjoys Supper

The Community club enjoyed a covered-dish supper at their regular meeting Friday night, May 5, in the club room dining room. A small but enthusiastic group enjoyed a table laden with a variety of foods and a most pleasant social hour.

After the meal, Mrs. A. L. Stevenson, president, appointed committees for the June meeting. Program committee: Miss Fanny Paul Ivey, Mesdames Eda Hinshaw and Lucille Ritter. Refreshment committee: Mesdames N. B. Martin, Carl Wyrick and A. L. Stevenson.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to our many friends for their numerous kindnesses during our recent bereavement.—Mr. and Mrs. Dave Smith and family.

Rocket Gun Salvo

RECENT NAZI AIR ATTACKS on England have met with salvos of rockets from batteries of new secret guns, like those shown in this picture. These guns are the result of years of research by British scientists. They are just one more example of the United Nations' ingenuity in producing new weapons against the foe.

Do you have trouble understanding OPA regulations? Buck up—so does the OPA! They purchased digests and analysis of their own edicts from a specialty of simplifying administrative regulations for bewildered business men.

Bewildered OPAers have bought 8,000 copies of the "Price Control Analysis" for use as a "working manual." Another popular favorite is the price regulations digest written in "business men's English."

Would Get Along Lots Faster

An editorial which recently appeared in The Bee, of Danville, Va., entitled "Straight From The Horse's Mouth" comments rather vigorously on the reluctance of at least some American citizens to accord others the same right and freedom of thought and freedom of speech as they demand for themselves.

The occasion and circumstances which provoked this editorial if nothing else prove that some Americans are not willing to accept with good graces the expressed opinions of others when those opinions do not coincide with the opinions that they would like to have expressed.

When three Purple Heart wearers describe their experiences while in battle and in so doing point out the indisputable fact that the boys in the foxholes do not make great demands and do not indulge in absenteeism in battle and that trivial indispositions do not retard their participation in the war effort on the battle front, American citizens should listen with sympathetic attention, for such men as the three who addressed a meeting in Danville recently know whereof they speak.

The three service men were invited guests at the meeting. They did not invite themselves. They were asked to express their opinions and to recount their experiences. They evidently demonstrated the same type of courage which they demonstrated on the battle front, because they called a spade a spade without concern as to whether it pleased their audience or not. They spoke from the heart, and they, no doubt, believed that by so doing they might in some small way help those boys that they left behind fighting our battles after wounds removed them from the scene of active fighting, suffering and dying.

They, no doubt, have been convinced since returning to this country that too much selfishness exists and too many demands are being made. They also must have been very much concerned by the alarming amount of absenteeism in this country. They spoke their piece and tried to urge a greater consideration of our responsibilities on the home front, and in so doing, they tried to draw a parallel between the fighting fronts and the home fronts.

Those three men were not merely talking to the audience in Danville, Va. They were talking to the American people. They were talking to all of us who have been inclined towards selfishness, who have been indifferent to our duties and responsibilities and who have permitted trivial things to prevent us from performing our jobs. They were talking to the friends and relatives of all those men who are daily making supreme sacrifices. They were talking to business men, workers, farmers. They were talking to the American people.

In the words of The Danville Bee, "It is a pretty sorry spectacle to see three men who have bled for their country publicly assailed with hostile resolutions because they did not say just what their sponsors had expected them to say."

The background of those three men reveals that they are certainly sympathetic with the problems of working men everywhere, but just because they were working men and are sympathetic to the problems of working men is no reason why they should pull their punches and not plead the cause of more sacrifices on the home front in order to in the end minimize the sacrifices and suffering on the battle front.

Those three men knew what sacrifice meant. They knew what suffering meant. They are wearers of the Purple Heart. We do not know whether any other medals of distinction have been awarded those men, but we will unhesitatingly say that if each and every one of us were as courageous, as loyal and as patriotic as are that soldier and his two sailor comrades, we would get along lots faster in bringing this terrible war to a victorious conclusion.

Y.M.C.A. Prayer Room Dedication Services

Mr. A. S. Arnold, general secretary of Cone Memorial YMCA, has provided a prayer room at the East White Oak branch. Rev. H. C. Hairston will dedicate the room. A picture of Christ will be dedicated by Rev. W. T. Turner. Mr. W. L. Shunburg, president of the Cone Memorial YMCA, will present the picture of Christ.

A special message will be delivered by Dr. David Jones, president of Bennett college. His subject will be Mother, Christ and prayer.

Members of the prayer committee are Mesdames Laura Gant, Bessie Grier, Esten Edwards, Annie Fewell, and Mr. Morton Hairston, chairman.

The general public is invited to be present at the dedication service Sunday, May 14, at 3:00 P.M. at the East White Oak branch.

Special Notice!

The Revolution Pre-School clinic will be held at Revolution apartments on June first and second (Thursday and Friday) from 9:00 to 10:30 o'clock. At this same hour children from six months to school age may be protected against diphtheria. Children should be accompanied by parent.

Plans For Observance Of National Cotton Week Increase Greatly

Response to plans for the third wartime observance of Cotton Week from May 22 to 27 by manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers is running ahead of expectations, according to the Cotton-Textile Institute and National Cotton Council, sponsors of the event.

Up to now more than 300,000 posters have been distributed to mills, wholesale houses, retail stores and civic organizations along with 25,000 copies of "Cotton Week News", an eight page tabloid which emphasizes the wartime role of cotton and describes how uses developed under the stress of war can be transformed into peacetime products.

As a tribute to Cotton Week, and the cotton textile industry, sponsors of National Foreign Trade Week, which coincides with Cotton Week, have voted to set aside one day to be known as "Cotton Day". The event will be observed with an appropriate program by the Textile Export Association. Only recently the Department of Commerce estimated that exports of American cotton goods in the immediate post-war years may run to three billion yards per annum.

Assurances of official recognition of Cotton Week have been received from the Governors of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Massachusetts, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota and Virginia.

Many national advertisers are planning to salute the event in radio programs, daily newspapers, consumer and trade magazines. Railroads will carry Cotton Week messages on dining car menus and many have planned to place posters in stations.

At present about 70 per cent of the production of the cotton industry is being used to clothe and equip the fighting forces or in the manufacture of the instruments of war. Over the remainder of the year the amounts of cotton goods available for consumers will be smaller than in any period in ning going on!"

"I just read something about that," I reflected, reaching for the magazine on my table. "Here, Aunt Matilda"—finding the place—"Intelligent and far-sighted business leaders are already planning for the new scheme of things. The superstition that business is opposed to planning is nonsensical. It is only opposed to unwieldy bureaucratic theoretical planning which jams the flow of economic progress."

"This whole article is optimistic," I went on. "It points out that we have all the conditions for a brilliant future in this country."

"We have all these modern plants, built for the latest production methods. We have greater sources of raw materials than we've ever had before, and all the new materials that have been developed during the war."

"This article says that if business is allowed its regular channels of competition we should have cheaper electricity, lower-priced houses—actually the greatest abundance we've ever known."

"Well," Aunt Matilda summed up, "actually, so far's I can make out, the only postwar plans that make horse-sense are the plans for helping business along. If the factories can keep running after the war like they're running now, I don't see as anybody has cause to worry."

recent history. It is for this reason that most retailers will so plan their presentations that emphasis will be on the war uses of cotton and the consequent necessity for consumers to take care of the cotton items now in their wardrobes.

Despite the heavy burden of war contracts, it is generally conceded that the cotton industry over the last two years did well by the consumers by supplying them with adequate amounts of their essential needs. By stepping up production to levels once regarded as unattainable, the industry not only succeeded in meeting the enormous requirements attendant upon the rapid organization of our armed forces but also supplied the mushrooming armament, aviation and shipbuilding industries. The crest of its productive effort was reached in the second quarter of 1942 but since that time output has been declining, due to a number of factors, chief among them the lack of manpower in a number of important centers.

This drop in production, of course, will reduce supplies for civilians since military, lend-lease, essential industrial and agricultural orders carry high priority ratings which must be met before mils are permitted to sell to their customary peacetime customers.

In connection with this, C. K. Everett, Institute merchandising director, states, "If Cotton Week can attract the support that is now in sight for it this year, even in face of restricted supplies that are not fully commensurate with the sales potentials of some items, there is sound reason to believe that the cotton textile industry can look ahead to the continued expansion of this event in the years that lie ahead. This year's observance serves well to highlight the fact that perhaps as nothing else Cotton Week is a unique and effective means for bringing all elements and branches of the industry closer together in pursuing a common interest."

The aggregate life insurance owned by Americans is now 25 billion dollars above the 1939 total, indicating the determination of the American people to work out their own future security through individual efforts.

On the average, each of the 68,000,000 life insurance policyholders has an indirect investment in business and industry of $150, through the policy reserve funds invested in business securities.

EMBLEM CLUB NEWS

The membership of the Cone Memorial Young Men's Christian association is the most vital force in the work of the YMCA. And especially is this fact so dynamic just now! Yes, the centennial special effort is truly now rounding the corner, and is now coming down the home stretch with only twenty-six days left in the only opportunity we will have to bolster our membership as approach our centennial birthday June 6th. There are many ways in which every member can help: first, you have friends, and it becomes your privilege and opportunity to invite that person to the YMCA membership.

We have time all during the day, at work, at home, school, office or shop to speak to our side worker, office co-worker, neighbor or friend riding home from work or on the street car, yes, and when you see him or her on Sunday afternoon. Your local YMCA is here to render the greatest possible service to the employees and dependent members of your family to develop clean sports, strong sturdy bodies, health and recreational activities; a wide range of magazines and daily, weekly and monthly periodicals that contains a wealth of information and a liberal education to the members.

Your social life must not be overlooked; there must be some place

Health-Recreation Department News

It will soon be camping time again. Since the boys in our community cannot have the privilege of attending Camp Herman, the next best thing is the stay-at-home or day camp. Plans are in the making now for a week's day camp at each branch of the YMCA during the latter part of June. A lot of interesting things can be done while having a lot of fun at a day camp. There is handicrafts, games, hikes, nature lore and swimming. Things all where friends can meet and have social intercourse, fellowship and an opportunity to render helpful service one to the other. Then, it so happens that man must of necessity have spiritual help either in the printed word, picture study or professional guidance at certain intervals of life, your Y. is a veritable store house for many of your basic needs.

Emblem club workers are reminded to earmark May 26th, 1:00 P.M. for second shift; 6:00 P.M. for 1st and 3rd shifts, final luncheon and supper meeting. The Stonewall Jackson Gra-Y club went on a hike and cook-out to the north of Philadelphia Pond, Monday, May 8th.

The Mohican Friendly Indian tribe staged an obstacle hike as a part of their weekly meeting program, Wednesday, May 10th.

The H. A. Barnes Gra-Y club had Mr. Barnes as guest and speaker at their club meeting Tuesday morning, May 9th. Mr. Barnes spoke to the boys about planning their summer program. He emphasized that play was just as important to a boy's growth as eating, and that boys should engage in wholesome play, and always play the game clean.

The Douglas McArthur Gra-Y club concluded a series of studies on "The Races of Mankind", at their weekly meeting Monday, May 8th. This has been a very interesting and enlightening study course led by the leader of the club, Leonard Bell.
